

Annual Report 2010

► Capital Area CASA Association

In the Spring of 2010, Capital Area CASA Association was selected to pilot National CASA's new training initiative, Fostering Futures. Through the generous support of the Walmart Foundation, National CASA developed a volunteer training curriculum that gives advocates special skills and resources needed to help steer and support older youth down a path toward the realization of their positive possible selves. The Fostering Futures program expanded the agency's work with older youth who are aging out or at risk of aging out of the system. The curriculum is designed for volunteers who advocate for children age

14 and up. The program served 260 children and had 162 active volunteers during the year.

After a successful capital campaign, construction on a new custom facility for Capital Area CASA Association was completed in early 2010.

A Message from the Louisiana CASA Executive Director

Looking back for a moment, 2010 was another monumental year for CASA in Louisiana. In 2010, there were 1,853 CASA volunteers who spoke up for the best interests of over 4,000 abused and/or neglected children in Louisiana's foster care system. CASA volunteers make a difference in their communities and, more importantly, make a difference in the life of a child who has done nothing wrong.

It is important to take a moment to reflect and acknowledge the hard work and commitment of staff, volunteers, and supporters. Because of their dedication, thousands of Louisiana's abused and neglected children were given a voice through the eyes and ears of a community advocate. Because of this steadfast belief that we can make a difference by working together, children in foster care have found a safe and permanent home with a family that is caring and nurturing.

Here at Louisiana CASA, we keep our focus on the mission: supporting local programs in their work to be the difference in an abused child's life. Whether through training, support, community development, or recognition; our goal is to support and uplift those who really matter to the children we serve — our CASA volunteers and staff!

Sincerely,

John E. Wyble, Ph.D.

A Message from the President of the Louisiana CASA Board of Directors

Thank you again for being an advocate for the best interests of abused and neglected children in Louisiana's court system. We all share a common commitment to integrity, teamwork and service. These three enduring principles allowed us to serve over 4,000 of these children last year.

Whether you are one of the nearly 2,000 volunteers, board member, staff, partner, or policy maker, it is your commitment to these principles that has made a lifelong difference for these children.

A special thanks again to our volunteers, ordinary people doing extraordinary work to help these special children.

We need to spread the word of our success to our families, friends, co-workers or anyone who will listen. Saving children is our first job; building sustainability is our second job.

It has been an honor to work with you and again thank you for your support of CASA.
